Paul Grant

Dear Bird,

Well, Lew's our "hook". At times I thought we'd never make it, but we did. What time, though! Remember Lexington? Oh, boy, Lew could you ever forget. Say, do you still see from that boy? Let's forget our arguments. Dear. I'm really proud of "our" annual. And you were a wonderful editor-in-chief. No kidding!

It's been so much fun knowing you these many years. Remember J.C. High Orchestra, then Chestnut and N.W.H.S. Golly, it's been wonderful, and you who have been a marvelous friend all along.

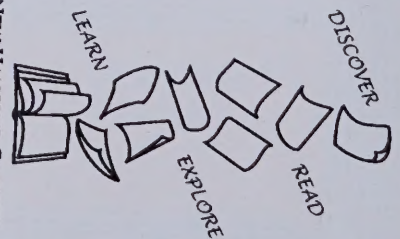

There's hoping you like Bryn Mawr, and I know you'll really go far. up South - maybe even be ed. of the annual.

Best of luck to you always. Remember to write me. Love!

Love ya,
Sarah

As we knew it

When, throughout the sometimes turbulent, sometimes difficult, always profitable days of 1951, we lived, learned, and thought together within the sturdy yet unconfining walls of our school, that we might be better citizens of our everchanging world.

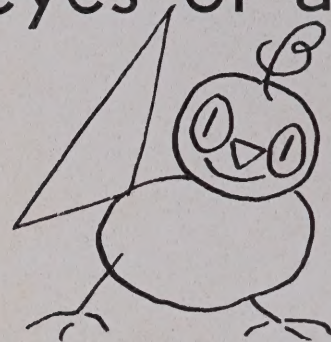

We have tried to capture here some of ourselves, who we were, what we did, and what we gained. And if you should find in one page, one picture, or one phrase some reminder of your days at New Hanover we shall feel well rewarded.

Dear Mr. Leaf:

Watchbird

Having just returned from the 1950 Southern Interscholastic Press Association Convention in Lexington, Virginia, our delegation, the nucleus of next year's yearbook staff, has devoted a great deal of time to plans for the 1951 Hanoverian.

First and foremost was the choice of a theme to be presented to the staff next fall. After much silent contemplation our adviser, Mrs. Harry Mintz, was struck with sudden inspiration. The watchbird! Mr. Leaf's watchbird! We remembered with pleasure the discussions you had led during the convention, and recalled the watchbirds with which you had illustrated your talks. The more we talked the better idea it became.

Now, after we have been home several days, the watchbird theme has grown in both possibility and appeal. We should like very much to have your permission to use the watchbird. If there are copyright restrictions or royalties we shall be glad to pay any fee involved.

I think our staff artist will be able to reproduce the watchbird satisfactorily, and I feel that the watchbird himself would perhaps not be averse to the idea, as my name is Bird.

We are looking forward to hearing from you soon. Thank you very much.

And so, Mr. Leaf,

DEDICATION

Our parents . . . who, believing always in opportunity through education, supported us; who, feeling fervently our successes and sorrows, sympathized; who, reliving their own school days with us, understood . . . our fathers and mothers, the kindest, most humane, most deserving of people. School board planned improvements

MR. H. M. ROLAND
Superintendent

The youth-conscious school board has assisted in the expansion of New Hanover, not only in the main building, but in the shops. Board improvements this year included painting of building insides, addition of cafeteria and lab equipment and audio-visual aid machine, assistance in purchase of band uniforms and piano, and the establishment of the airplane mechanics department. As summed up by school superintendent Mr. H. M. Roland, "It is the policy of the Board to keep the science labs, library, visual education department, shops, physical education department, commercial department, and all classrooms supplied with the necessary paraphernalia to keep the school on a par with the best in the state. Many of these departments are outstanding in the nation and are known throughout the country. No high school in the state has a more comprehensive program or is better-equipped than New Hanover High School.

Teachers and students work

Watchbird, personified, sees faculty and classes as they meet daily and work in happy harmony.

in friendly relationship

MR. DALE KIRK SPENCER
Principal

The genial coordinator of all New Hanover's activities, whether large or small, Mr. Spencer maintained the respect and affection of both students and teachers. His ability to see through difficult situations and meet them with diplomacy and wisdom, his genuine interest in all the students' activities, and his warm personality, which is the essence of our school spirit, have endeared him to everyone.

MR. MELVIN G. STAHL
Assistant Principal

Versatile vice-principal

Is Mr. Melvin G. Stahl, who, a vital mainspring in the administration, has become completely identified with all student interests and activities. Whether it be the choice of a college or an auditorium reservation, Mr. Stahl was ready to assist everyone.

and friendly deans

The efficiency and cooperation of our deans were well-known to New Hanover students through much helpful advice and counsel about numerous problems, ranging from advance excuses to schedule changes. To all those who have been associated with our deans—and the watchbird was a frequent standee in lines formed for advice—the names of Mrs. Harriss and Mr. Capps signify a personal interest in all their problems.

Miss Montgomery

Miss Elizabeth Montgomery, Registrar

Have you asked Miss Montgomery about your schedule? Does Miss Montgomery have any more bus tickets? Miss Montgomery, could I sign out now? These and a thousand other queries were met and handled with friendliness and efficiency by Miss Elizabeth Montgomery, registrar.

Mrs. Zylphia Dickerson Daniels, Nurse

Mrs. Daniels not only amply fulfilled her duty as nurse but often went beyond. Diagnosing students' sudden complaints . . . applying bandages . . . administering medicine . . . Few students have not experienced her patience and wisdom in all matters of the infirmary.

Mrs. Jane Davis, Secretary

A welcome sight among inhabitants of Mr. Spencer's outer office was Mrs. Davis, smiling cheerfully as she pounded out official letters, mimeographed the bulletin, filed program cards, and lifted morale in general.

Miss Marie Schulken, Receptionist

"Miss Schulken would know—she's either in her office or the bookroom!" A daily echo repeated many times by searchers for lost books, debt-settlers for class rings, and prospective signers-out. Sprightly Miss Schulken helped all the perplexed and confused, whether newcomers or mis-placers, with wry good humor, and was highly appreciated.

Mrs. Ruth Lodor, Dietitian

Well-balanced meals were served daily in the cafeteria, supervised by Mrs. Lodor. The students' delight at the reasonable price and delicious quality of their lunch was evident in the large numbers of students who crowded the cafeteria both fifth and sixth lunches.

Mr. William Arthur Moore, Custodian

Be it a lost locker key, a collapsed window shade, or doubtfully existent stage-sets for the assembly program, Mr. Moore was sure to know just what to do; if possible, he did it, to the gratification of students and teachers alike.

Indispensable helpers

"Down in the back!" "Heads in the window!" and with these admonitions to the homeward-bound bus students another line of orange buses rolls down 14th street with dependable NHHS bus drivers at the wheels, on which sat the watchbird for horn-blowing purposes.

Cafeteria helpers busily work all morning to prepare delicious low-cost food available at fifth and sixth lunches. The watchbird enjoyed daily seed snacks he had wheedled good-natured cooks George and Jenkins into preparing for him.

Quietly and efficiently the maids kept the school in order—the floors clean, the boards erased, and the furniture dustless. With admirable enterprise the watchbird busily collected stray broomstraws for the nest he was constructing on the roof.

Our own language came first

With the English Department and everyone else . . . various English courses included Journalism, Speech Arts, and just English. The watchbird wound up in the Speech Arts class trying to improve his chirp diction. With a dual emphasis on literature and grammar, English courses were designed to better communication methods—speaking, listening, reading, and writing.

Foreign languages were offered

"I know!" volunteers eager student in one of Mrs. Bellamy's classes. Spanish is one of the most popular language courses offered.

French . . . Spanish . . . Latin . . . they weren't merely verbs and nouns, but became other people and countries as languages were made real. The watchbird spent a whole day on Mrs. Newcomb's Julius Caesar statue, but just couldn't understand what was happening. The students' linguistic achievements were unlimited, however, they acquired skill in and appreciation of foreign languages.

The past and present came alive

Lively current events discussions and analyses were combined with interpretations of past events to make government and history courses both enlightening and beneficial. Sole point of interest for the watchbird in United States History was when Columbus stopped at the Canary Islands . . . (dangerous rivals, he thought).

Math wizards solve problems

The Mathematics Department courses included Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, College Math, and Consumer Math. Students learned practical math for everyday use in consumer courses; they learned to reason and follow rules in algebra and higher math courses; they received firm foundations for college and business. Our watchbird decided his favorite course was geometry, where he stole free rides on the board compass when the teacher wasn't looking.

Curriculum included culture

The theory of music class learned music fundamentals, such as chord building and harmonic dictation. The Girls Glee Club and Mixed Chorus A and B dealt with music technique, while the R.O.T.C. Band and High School Bands A, B and C offered training in instrumental music. All music courses were good foundations for musical careers and for personal pleasure.

Art students learned self-expression through art history and art appreciation. They made practical application of art principles, not only by working with paper, but also with clay, marionettes, and scenery. The watchbird was highly flattered when asked to model for posters one day by Miss Lossen's classes; his broad grin grew noticeably wider for several days afterwards.

Upper: Miss Lossen offers advice to portrait painter, as basket-weaver and papier mache artist wait for her attention. These handicrafts and many others taken up in art courses make them high in student popularity. Lower: Mr. Taylor hopefully directs members of his second period chorus class as they watch raptly for signals.

Close-up illustrates the correct finger positions as taught in typing classes, which are among the most popular commercial courses.

And for the career-minded

Fleet-fingered commercial students jotted down shorthand notes with flying pencils, rapidly typed, to the bewilderment of the watchbird, who wondered why the keys didn't collide, capably delved into the inner workings of office machines, and mastered all the abilities of top-flight clerks, bookkeepers, and secretaries. Graduates of these courses were highly trained, and there were many job opportunities available.

For practical, everyday living

The Trade, Industry, and Agriculture Department offered rare experience in all types of manual work. Metalwork, Woodwork, Diversified Occupations, and Mechanical Drawing were a few of the courses offered by this department. Equipment and instructors of the best combined to make graduates of these courses in much demand. The watchbird abandoned these courses after he stood too close to a saw one day and narrowly escaped losing his tail, but the boys considered them among their favorites.

Science was made real

Accomplished homemakers were turned out by the Home Economics courses . . . sewing, cooking, good grooming, and child care were all included in the first year course, while second and third year Home Economics courses offered more advanced domestic skills. The watchbird gazed approvingly as the first year girls tried on the garments they had made during the year.

General science course was all-inclusive, with everything from basic health information to steam engines. The biology courses were diverse in their scope, with plant study supplemented by field trips, wild-life study by actual specimens, and human diseases by microscopic examination. Chemistry and physics courses provided firm foundations for the scientifically inclined.

For physical discipline

Major Mayers instructs Company "D" cadets in military strategy.

Preparation of the finest was given to the ROTC cadets. Military organization, leadership, military history, maps and aerial photographs, first aid, combat formations, weapons . . . these were only a few of the things studied by the ROTC boys. The only high school unit in the state, the battalion maintained a superior rating and turned out boys well-versed in the military.

and physical fitness

The watchbird's eyes became rounder and rounder as from the basketball hoop he watched the physical education classes perform healthy workouts. Required of all ninth grade students, these classes did exercises, learned sports and games, and became well-informed about health hygiene.

In unison gym students participate in daily exercises which are a part of gym routine. Latter part of period is usually spent in sports.

GENERAL

To meet the problems of the confused world which greeted us upon leaving high school. Seniors anticipating college were given a firm foundation in all subjects; those entering the ever-broadening world of business were adequately trained by the highly efficient commercial department; those seniors interested in trade were given splendid instruction in all its phases by the industrial department, while students without definite plans were provided with liberal preparation.

Thus our high school has equipped us with a thorough background; our students will lead better lives and become better citizens for having learned how at New Hanover.

Progressive student body officers

Were leaders of the complex system of student government embodying the Senate and the House. The Senate, composed of six representatives from each class and the class presidents, formulated bills, originated finance legislation, and worked with the House of Representatives for the general welfare of the student body. The House was composed of home room representatives, class vice-presidents, and headed by Joyce Hayes, student body vice-president.

Both House and Senate were led by George Patterson, student body president, and served by Betty Lou Lamb, student body secretary. They worked closely with the cabinet, executive committee, and the judicial department.

The watchbird was an enthusiastic participant in the spirited campaigns for student body officers; he chirped speeches, wore campaign ribbons, and hardly squeaked at all when he was mistaken for a thumb tack and pushed through his favorite candidate's poster into the wall.

The student body was intensely interested in both the elections and the elected. As leaders of the whole school, these officers were closely connected with its personality and activities, and as legislature heads they played a vital part in effecting improvements and helping to make the new constitution function more efficiently than ever.

Fun-loving seniors

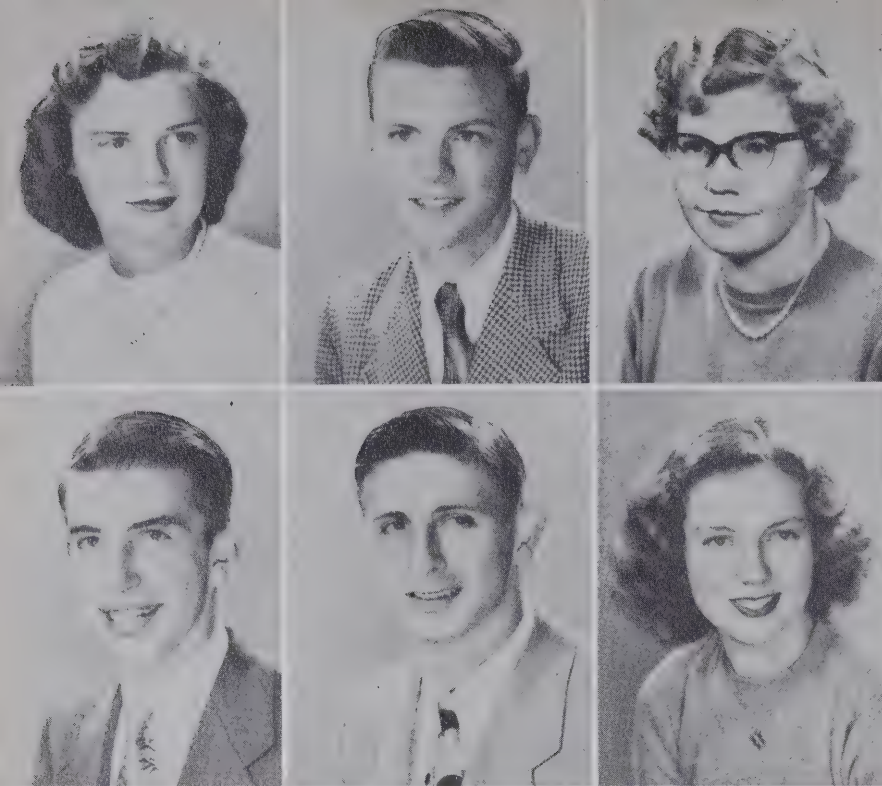

Seniors, caught in a whirlwind of caps and gown measurements, senior play practices, calling card orders, senior step occupancy, college applications, and a battery of other duties and privileges peculiar to seniors, took everything in their stride and found time occasionally for other things. Led by class officers Leo Roberson, president; Margaret Crowe, vice-president; Jo Ann Maultsby, secretary; and senators Tommy Womble, Herman Postma, Mary Fisher, Linwood Robinson, Jack King, and Roddy Cameron, and class adviser Miss Texys Morris, they presented a successful senior play and were honored by junior-senior prom. They survived final exams in splendid condition, knowing they really were finals; they marched out first in assembly, to the amusement of the watchbird, dangling from the balcony.

The superlative election was of major senior interest; the HANOVERIAN staff held a Roman banquet assembly program to introduce them, at which the watchbird, draped in a toga and nibbling grapes, felt very superior because he had peeked at the list and already knew who they were.

The National Honor Society inducted twenty delighted seniors, making a total of thirty-three members. Other clubs elected officers, and seniors assumed more and more responsibility.

Their senior year was a combination of plans for the future and memories of the past . . . with eagerness, relief, and regret they were swept forward to May . . . to their own graduation, and after that to college, careers, and homes.

Our class remembers this . . .

The watchbird perched on the lamppost that warm September morning in 1947 and smiled knowingly as the freshman class of seven hundred crowded curiously around the posted bulletins to see their homeroom numbers, a little homesick for grammar school, eager to begin high school, and very much confused by the immensity of high school.

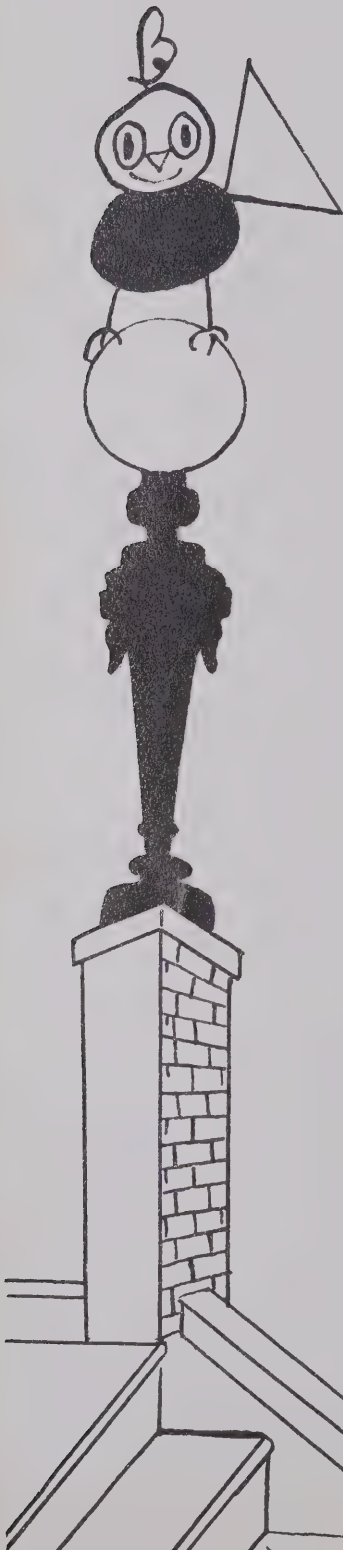

His smile became wider and wider as they struggled through the halls, up the wrong stairs, and into their classrooms. That freshman day was certainly a memorable one for them. The watchbird glanced pleasingly over the shoulders of Mr. Hamilton, their principal, as he welcomed all of them into the whirling, busy, wonderful midst of New Hanover High School. The watchbird eagerly introduced himself to all of the freshmen during the Freshman Frolic, and then took a back seat with the chaperones and enthusiastically previewed the dancing and the games. After the ballots of the freshman elections were counted, the watchbird personally congratulated the winning candidates Joyce Hayes, Julius Parker, and Mona Peterson.

The first year in high school raced by; and when September, 1948 arrived, the students were all sophomores. Although he was not a disclaimer, the watchbird helped the teachers coach the contestants in the Declamation Contest and later presented the awards to the winners. How high the watchbird held his head as he marched on one of the cadet's ROTC caps at formation, and how proud he was when a sophomore was given extra recognition. The student body was becoming so large that Mr. Hamilton decided he needed someone to help him. Both the students and the watchbird were pleased with the selection of their assistant principal, Mr. Stahl. Jimmy Fountain, Margaret Crowe, Jo Ann Maultsby, and the watchbird showed us what fine leaders they were; and almost before the class had learned to spell sophomore, they were writing junior, and with a new principal to guide them, Mr. Dale K. Spencer.

The junior play, "Here Comes Charlie," was a tremendous success, and the watchbird had a front seat during both performances. The class saw the watchbird at the junior-senior prom, dressed in a tuxedo as he served punch to the belles and beaux in the cafeteria. The gymnasium, which was decorated to resemble an under-water scene, could never have been more beautiful. The watchbird sharpened his pencils and took the final junior exams and passed with high marks. Joyce Hayes, George Patterson, and Hazel Bonham, the junior class officers, turned their reign over to Leo Roberson, Margaret Crowe, and Jo Ann Maultsby, the senior class officers, and George Patterson, Joyce Hayes, and Betty Lou Lamb, the officers of the student body.

When the students returned to school in September, 1950, there was the watchbird again perched on the lamppost, but this time he watched them climb the senior steps as seniors instead of freshmen. What a thrill the watchbird received as he left the auditorium ahead of the underclassmen. The senior play was brilliantly presented; and, once again, the watchbird took his tuxedo out of moth balls, so that he could wear it to the junior-senior prom. With May flowers came graduation; and the watchbird did not try to conceal his tears in leaving New Hanover High School, with all of its pleasures, its teachers, and its friends.

Upperclassmen at last!

Known by and knowing everyone, the in-between juniors were on equally good terms with all the classes. They struck a happy medium between play and sophistication with their parties, productions, and projects.

Their junior year brought their first class play, "You Can't Take It With You," directed by Mr. Alton Finch, with Beth White, Barbara Womble, Margaret Clark, Joe Hood, Al Gumb, and Kenny Nichols in leading roles. Profits went for the junior-senior prom, a record-breaking success. These productions were given helpful advice by Miss Margaret Williams, class adviser, and guided by class officers Barbara Hatcher, president; Barbara Womble, vice-president; Eva Kefalas, secretary; and senators Thelma Barclift, Irene Emory, Pat Shipp, Shirley Council, Jimmy Ingram, and Virginia Harriss.

Individual annual pictures boosted morale, though it little needed support, and they cheered vigorously at all the games and proudly received class rings.

With the watchbird settled on the steering wheel for horn-blowing purposes, these happy-go-lucky juniors set out with wary mothers and dads to learn to drive, and they usually did . . .

They prepared for next year's responsibility by training class members as juniors . . . Edith Borjes, annual representative, Nancy White, Frances Bellamy, Julian Rogers, and David Pace, junior social marshals, junior cheerleaders Ann Bruce, Nancy Bruce, Kenneth Nichols and Barbara Hatcher, and all the athletes were worthy trainees.

Their year ended with spirited student body and senior class officer elections, and juniors left school until their senior year.

Exuberant sophomores

Sophomores amazed the watchbird with their sudden, spontaneous grasp on school life . . . they bounced in at the first of the year with the TWIRP dance, and followed it up by much club-joining and float-building for the parade. Class officers Susan Walker, president; Jean Fisher, vice president; and Maxine Schwartz, secretary were capable leaders in all class activities, assisted by Mrs. Georgia King Jenkins, adviser.

The TWIRP dance was their major project, and it was enthusiastically received by everyone . . . the watchbird was there too, but no one knew it. He was too shy to break the custom and ask a girl to dance . . .

With many classmates promoted to 6th lunch and Wednesday assembly, sophomores assumed new duties, cheered more vigorously than ever at pep rallies and games, and saw more and more of their names turn up in the Wildcat. They were in the middle of school affairs, and they loved it. Senators Barbara Holt, Johanne McKee, Lucille Barden, Edgar Fisher, Patti Moore, and Diane Snakenburg, together with House members from homerooms represented the sophomore class in student government.

Sophs felt their English period was well-used when they were herded into the auditorium to have annual pictures made . . . Mr. Browning said "Look at the birdie!" in earnest, for there was the watchbird, perched on the camera and making faces at photographees.

The sophomores wound up the year with class elections, and left school, anticipating next year, when they would be upperclassmen.

ROXANA MEBANE
Vice-President

KAREN KURKA
Secretary

The freshman class again frolicked into New Hanover, seven hundred strong this year, with the wide-eyed wonder that only frosh can have . . . and mixed in with it this year was a beaming pride at being the last freshmen to enter New Hanover; the next frosh class will go to new junior high schools.

They plunged wholeheartedly into school life as they campaigned for elections; the halls were adorned with posters, and classrooms rang with speeches. The final results revealed that the class would be led by Pete Land, president; Roxana Mebane, vice-president; Karen Kurka, Secretary; and by senators Oscar Grant, Hattie Gray Kinlaw, Patsy Parrett, Tommy Cook, Don Frost, and Jimmy Porter. Class activities were greatly aided by Miss Mary Warren, freshman class adviser.

Their energy popped out again as they built floats for the school parade. As the watchbird viewed proceedings from the top-most framework and offered rarely taken advice, the freshmen went all-out for the homecoming parade. Frosh were represented by all the first year Latin clubs and homerooms 317, 308 and 106.

The feminine frosh happily supported the TWIRP dance by inviting to the dance their favorite followers . . . and their cotillion activities were furthered by the Freshman Frolic.

The freshmen's delight at having individual pictures in the annual was equaled only by the sophomores', and to demonstrate their approval most of them bought Hanoverians . . . freshman team-supporters cheered especially hard in front of Roxana Mebane, class vice-president and energetic freshman cheerleader.

The school's youngest flourishingly finished the year with another vigorous election and eagerly awaited Next Year.

High principles manifested

National Honor Society

The thrill of induction, the excitement of first meetings and first pins, the satisfaction of completing projects, such as the homecoming float . . . all this was a tangible part of being a member of the National Honor Society; but the intangible part went even deeper, to the solemn dignity and responsibility of carrying out the Society's ideals: character, scholarship, leadership, and service.

Homemakers led busy lives

The energetic FHA chapter carried out its eight purposes with vim and vigor. Emphasizing the importance of worthy home membership was their family life program; encouraging democracy in home and community life was their participation in community projects; promoting international good will was their adoption of a foreign Home Ec. class and the sending of a box overseas for the World Christmas Festival; fostering the development of creative leadership in home and community life was their participation in the national FHA projects; providing wholesome recreation, combined with good deeds, was their enthusiastic sale of cards to assist with the chapter finances; and furthering interest in home economics was their whole program of activity, interspersed, of course, with the watchbird's antics as he, grinning, attended meetings and feigned interest in the domestic arts.

Arts and Crafts Club

And presto! Another project is finished by the Arts and Crafts club. It might be a witty cartoon session (the watchbird admired their wit too until they used him for a model one day), a bit of intricate weaving, or a sketching expedition, but whatever the occasion the Arts and Crafts club members learned more about art and thoroughly enjoyed themselves while learning.

Latin clubs on all four levels grew more interested in the Roman people and their language through their varied activities. From learning Latin songs, producing Latin skits, writing and reading Roman stories to entering floats in the homecoming parade and helping needy families, each Latin student found that an integral part of high school was belonging to and participating in his Latin Club.

Buenos dias-every day!

The Spanish Clubs upheld their purpose, to learn more about the life, language, and literature of the Spanish people, with characteristic vigor. Besides their classroom activities, they entered floats in the parade, established an award for the most outstanding Spanish student, and energetically worked together to put on the annual Spanish Fiesta.

Better government through

Future World Citizens Government Club

The government clubs, under the guidance of Mr. Gurganus, Mr. Lounsbury, and Mr. Stout, busily upheld their purpose, to better the governmental affairs of the community and to further democratic principles. They enthusiastically promoted community spirit with homecoming floats and city government day. The latter consisted of having government students elected to hold city offices (the watchbird was crushed because he couldn't vote) for a day.

Fun, fellowship in busy Y-Teens

Exuberant Y-Teen clubs completed numerous projects throughout the year. Led by President Jeannette Potter, the Senior chapter helped the needy with Thanksgiving baskets; read to the blind, sponsored a homecoming float with Y-Teen Queen Inez Simmons, held a Mother-Daughter banquet and a Christmas caroling party, and sent delegates to State

Y-Teen Conference. The Sophomores, piloted by capable, prexy Sherry Rich, sponsored a New Year's dance, gave Thanksgiving baskets, sent Christmas cards to cerebral palsy victims, and refurbished a card table for the Catherine Kennedy home. The watchbird thoroughly enjoyed the caroling expedition, though his lusty chirps were almost drowned out by the girls.

Writing addicts joined Scribblers

Scribblers Club promoted an interest in creative writing, which culminated in the production of the annual Scribblers Magazine. Programs often consisted of speeches about different types of writing, as well as informal readings of members' work. The watchbird became so inspired at one of the latter that he composed an epic poem to watchbirds, but was hurt when the magazine committee refused to include his work.

O. Henry-ites—book enthusiasts

Under the amiable leadership of Sally Smith, president, and Mr. Breedlove, adviser, O. Henry promoted student interest in books with a series of well-planned programs featuring speakers and discussions. A major achievement was the sponsoring of the annual short story contest (which the watchbird eagerly but vainly entered).

The Bible Club fulfilled its purpose—to promote Christian ideals and character among students—by means of its programs, which were equally inspiring and beneficial. Members also attended local rallies and sent delegates to the district convention.

The Library Club promoted interest in reading by means of their lively teas and artistic displays for new books, shown above. Advisers were Miss Cromartie and Miss O'Keefe.

Handbook Committee

The Orange and Black Handbook, work of the handbook committee, was helpful to the whole school, including everything from traffic regulations for the inquisitive frosh through club-joining information for the alert sophs and juniors to material for ample check-ups on the finer points of the new constitution for the seniors. Summer work by the committee made the handbook available at the first of school.

Telephone Directory Committee

The colorful telephone directory was perpetually being whisked in and out and peeked at, for everything from Christmas card addresses to 'phone numbers. Students and teachers accorded praise to Emily Baucom, competent chairman; Nancy Kurka, for her appealing gremlin cover; Mr. Brown, for always helpful advice; advertising committee, Eva Kefalas and Nancy White; and typists, Mary Fisher, Sarah Lassiter, Barbara Bailey, Margaret Thomason, Paulette Stein, Jewel Blanton, and Peggy Hill.

as Senate and House join forces

Student legislature this year consisted of two houses in accordance with the new constitution, and their energy doubled with their number. Among the projects they sponsored were the homecoming parade and Freshman Day, the weekly We Honor column in the WILDCAT, the womanless wedding assembly program, the operation of the school store, the school's Christmas decorations, sale of stationery, installation of more water coolers, and the holding of the Eastern District Student Council Congress convention in Wilmington.

Co-ordinating Committee

in double-duty democracy

The watchbird found a happy post while sitting in on the co-ordinating committee meetings; their activities constituted the "go-between" between the House and the Senate, and that was just what he liked to do. Under the guidance of Mr. Brown, the co-ordinating committee decided whether the importance of various bills merited an entrance into the other house and worked closely with legislature, as it tried to promote better student-faculty cooperation.

Youth, health, education

Not child prodigies, but Nursery school inhabitants. Under the sponsorship of Home Economics Department the Nursery school under the expert guidance of Miss Frances Jordan and Mrs. W. O. Bryant, fulfilling the double capacity of providing excellent care for Pre-school children at a nominal fee and a first-hand opportunity for the Home Ec. classes to observe child behavior during their child care unit. The only such nursery in the state, it has proved its worth in helping high school students understand themselves through the study of young children. The daily routine consists of alternate play, rest, and educational group activity.

Drama addicts transformed stage

... from the ordinary auditorium to a wonderland of curtain calls and cues, scripts and scenery, and actors and abracadabra. Activities of the Thespians included studying various stage props, doing radio programs with the radio forum, making up actors for student productions, being student directors, having programs featuring various speakers, and presenting an annual play. On Opening Night the watchbird eagerly swung from the balcony railing to witness the big production.

Suspense ... laughter ... action ... and the watchbird held his breath as the Junior Play began, under the expert direction of Mr. Alton Finch. Beth White was scatterbrained, play-writing Penelope Sycamore to perfection, whose weird family life was more than enough plot material. Harris King was Martin Vanderhof, who calmly disbelieved in income tax and aroused inspector Julian Rogers to Official Action. Margaret Clark as Alice Sycamore, fell in love with the boss's son, Al Gumb, and the plot thickened with the objections of his parents, Doris Scott and Richard Rogers as Mr. and Mrs. Kirby.

You can't take it with you

Confusing elements were added by snake-collector Paul Sycamore, Martin Nichols, and ballerina Essie, Barbara Womble, who whirled to creaking melodies Joel Martin extracted from the phonograph and incoherent instructions of Sam McMillan, Russian dance instructor Kolenkhov. Zalma Brower and Claud Efird, cook and butler-handyman, tottered in and out for the latest on dinner plans, and Ross Maples lent royal air as Russian Grand Duchess Olga. Dreamy Gay Wellington, actress, was played effectively by Thelma Barclift, the three men were Mitchell Jenkins, Nathan Skipper, and Pete Dannenbaum, while Bobby Tate was eccentric Mr. De Pinna. Play ended happily for Alice, Tony, and everyone.

The business staff included: Eva Kefalis, manager; Shirley Council, ticket chairman; Nancy Knox, program chairman; Irene Emory, publicity chairman; Billy Costas, house manager. Mr. Willie Warner was business faculty adviser.

The technical staff included: Clifton Foy, stage manager; Virginia Harriss, stage properties manager; Althea McHenry, hand properties manager; Ted Lynch, stage scenery manager; Edith Thompson, costume manager; Betsy Jones, wardrobe mistress; Bertie Lewis, make-up coordinator; Russell Clark, call boy; Ann Bowles and Thera Strawn, prompters.

Accent on harmony

Under the expert baton of Mr. Sam Taylor, director, and garbed in their new crimson robes, Mixed Chorus "A" sang their way through a happy and successful year. Performances at Rotary, Civitan, and other civic club luncheons, at county grammar schools, at the Azalea Festival Community Sing, in assembly, at the music festival at Greensboro, and finally of the operetta "Waltz King" by Strauss won the acclaim of both students and townspeople. The watchbird vainly tried to wangle membership from director Sam, but was told genially to "wait another year." (He contented himself with helping accompanist Barbara Bailey hit out-of-the-way notes.)

Mr. Taylor frenziedly reaches the hair-tearing stage in a morning Glee Club rehearsal of the operetta, as he madly eyes the score and hears the difference.

Head, H. Sanderson, C. Von Der Leith, T. Clemmons, R. Lewis, D. James, and B. Sumner attended the district band clinic in Greenville, North Carolina. As a concert group the NHHS band won the praise of students, teachers, and townspeople.

Yell leaders boost morale

Cheerleaders

The cheerleaders' twirling skirts, synchronized gestures, and lusty cheers spark the yells and songs of team supporters. Led this year by energetic chief cheerleader, Jimmy Fountain, and versatile assistant head, Pat Hawley, sparkling Barbara Hatcher, vigorous Charles Bordeaux, enthusiastic Kenneth Murphy, cheerful Bobby Ozment, refreshing frosh Roxana Mebane, peppy Arvin Davis, zealous Kenny Nichols, the incomparable Bruce twins, and the ardent, though raspy, watchbird created spirit wherever they led yells—at pep rallies, football games, and basketball games. The home game goal post decorations were cheerleaders' responsibility, and an outstanding event was a dance honoring the football team, at which Varsity Sweetheart Barbara Dunham reigned.

Glamorous girl athletes

Enthusiastic Girls' Athletic Association members seldom dawdled as they strived to out-do their masculine counterparts in participating in the wholesome and varied after-school activities. Year-round sports included volleyball, basketball, tennis, tumbling, badminton, and hiking. Leaders of the latter were Ruth Moore, Juanita Bowen, Lillie Pearl Jordan, Dura Jo Gilligan, Caroline Brown, Ann Strong, Delores Samuels, and Jere Smith. The climax of the year's events was the journey of fifteen top point-earners to the State Play Day at Woman's College in Greensboro.

Burt Grant—two year letterman, first string varsity; as a top-flight returning quarterback, he has a fine future next year.

Charlie Niven—two year letterman, all conference team two years, all-state this year; energetic halfback and speed demon, he received Shrine Bowl invitation.

Jerry Outlaw—two year letterman; he performed outstandingly as reserve halfback.

Dewey Jackson—two year letterman, first string varsity and a stalwart left tackle; he received Optimist Bowl invitation.

Pat Harrington—versatile three year letterman, all-state two years as center and end; Pat was co-captain last year and an outstanding linebacker this year.

Fritz Mintz—two year letterman, first string, Fritz was hampered considerably by a broken hand, nevertheless played fine ball in guard position, was vicious tackler.

Ray Dyson—four year varsity, two year letterman, Ray was a husky guard who demonstrated fine line-plunging ability.

Claude King—three year letterman, fullback deluxe and kick-off artist; Claude gained the recognition this year of being elected co-captain and receiving an invitation to the Optimist Bowl, declined because of injured shoulder.

Walter Simmons—two year letterman, guard and all-around dependable player; received distinction this year when he was chosen co-captain, but missed several games because of broken hand.

Typical Niven run, number 24, Charlie Niven goes across for another touchdown. His touchdown twin, Harold Goodson, number 22, runs as interference.

Bob McHenry—two year letterman; Bob was virtually the squad utility man and played in center, guard and tackle positions.

Dudley Humphrey—two year letterman, showed capability in both tackle and end positions, steadily improved throughout year.

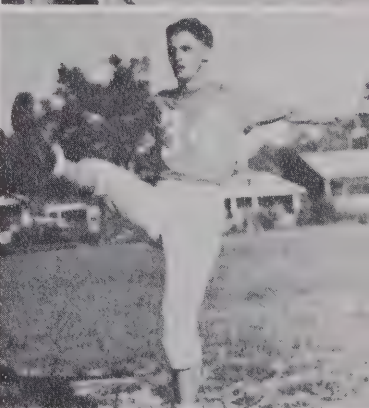

Robert Swart—two year letterman; although severely handicapped at season's outset by broken ankle, Robert showed great promise in end position.

Bull Overton—first string varsity, two year letterman; Bull created devastating defense with his hefty tackling and blocking, was invited to Optimist Bowl.

Julian Rogers—returning two year letterman; Julian showed distinctive ball-playing ability at end position.

Jere Hilburn—two year letterman; Jere was a strong contender for quarterback position, displayed wizard passing ability, and was invited to Optimist Bowl, where he scored East's single T.D.

Dynamic individualists

Football, 1950 . . . the watchbird vigorously cheered the Wildcats in their victorious pre-conference tilts, held his breath during the first triumphant conference games, sighed bitterly as the Wildcats lost to archrival Durham 13-21, and smiled again as the Wildcats placed third in final tabulation of state teams.

Defeating Raleigh for the first time in eighteen years two years ago, we did it again this year with a 46-6 trouncing.

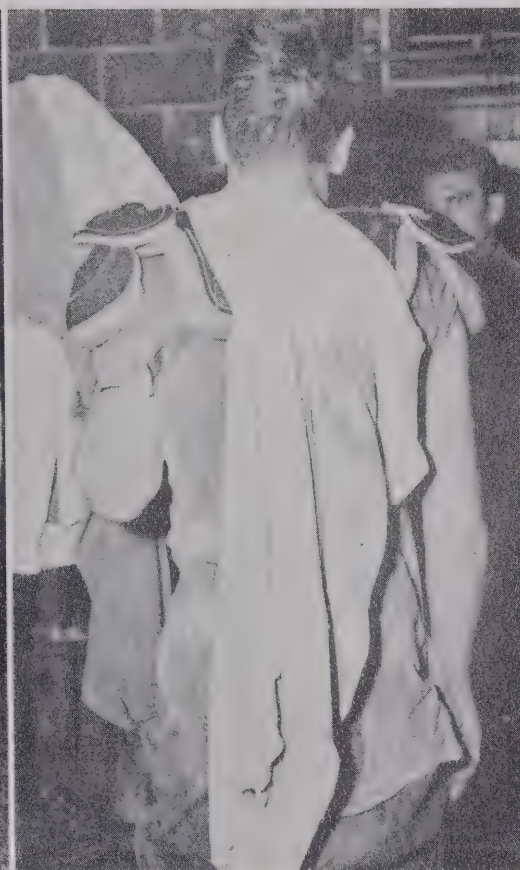

Biggest thrill of the season was the 14-0 defeat of Fayetteville, with Niven's aerial to Outlaw for the first TD against the eleven, followed by Grant's conversion, and Outlaw's 20 yard sprint for the second TD, also followed by Grant's conversion.

The Wildcats are proud of their high-scoring season, with a total sum of 321 points against their opponents' 64.

Harold Goodson, 33, and Claude King, 36, tried in vain to intercept that pass; but the majority of the time they took the ball from the other team.

Coaches Brogden, Gillette, and Davis led the fighting JV's to 2 wins, 2 losses, and 1 tie as the half-century crowds cheered and the watchbird nearly fell off the goalpost. Biggest victory of the season was the 25-0 defeat of Southport, when halfback John Futch, quarterback Sonny Jurgenson, and fullback Jack Watson all scored. Vic Canfield, Vic Edens, Richard Lewis, Buck Gurganus, and Lewis Horne were line standouts, while Morton, Hardy, Jurgenson, Watson, and Futch gave help in the backfield.

Brains, brawn, and conquest

A high powered offensive attack set in a background of sparkling defensive play carried the 1951 Wildcat basketball team to the Class AAA State Championship—the club's greatest accomplishment since the '47 season.

Under the able supervision of Coaches Leon Brogden and Jap Davis, the Orange and Black hoop warriors hung up a season's record of 19 victories out of 21 games played. The team captured their third straight Eastern conference title by bowling over 11 foes while losing one league scrap to Rocky Mount.

The Wildcats then whipped Asheville, Durham and Raleigh in the finals of the state meet held at Duke University. The comparatively easy win over the Caps provided the Wilmington cagers with their first State crown since NHHS crew topped Greensboro here for the championship in the '47 campaign.

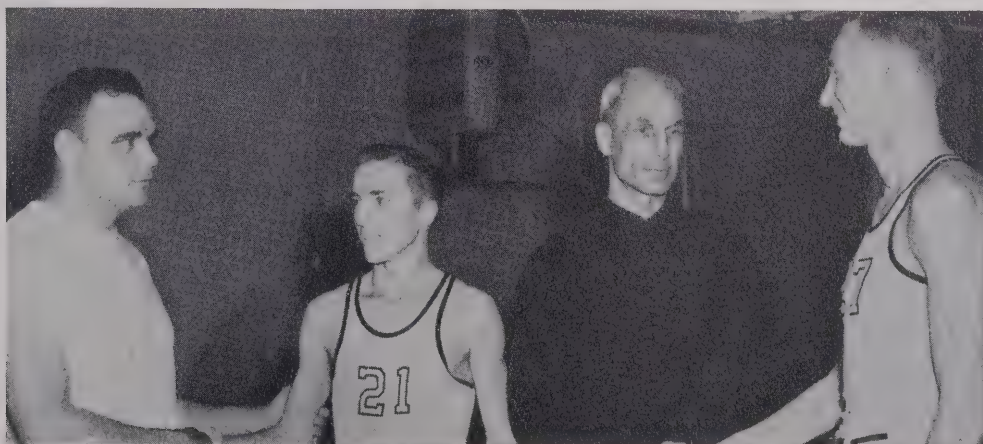

Coach Brogden's short but fast-moving quint opened the season by beating Lumberton 88-42 there . . . the 'Cats had a sizzling 49% in this fracas . . . the lowest ebb was reached when they hit but 25% of their chances in losing to Rocky Mount 43 to 40 . . . In all, the Wilmington contingent connected for 1403 points in the 21 tilts—an average of 66.8 for the season . . . Speedy Charlie Niven was the leading scorer with 364 markers . . . Charlie averaged 16.8 for the circuit clashes . . . Pivotman Marion Hales had a 16.4 mark for the same span.

Five-foot-eight-inch Cecil Heath was the mainspring in the often-overlooked defensive work of the New Hanover five . . . Wilmington opponents scored 754 points during the regular season, and added enough to make it 902 through the tournament . . . Little Vic Batson deserves a lot of credit for his contribution to the team's success . . . and this should certainly apply to Florenz Worrell, who saw considerable action during the long grind . . . At times forward Jere Hilburn supplied some needed spark, but "Toothpick" had the unfortunate luck to foul out or nearly so just when he seemed to get started.

Numerous honors were heaped on the great '51 edition of Wildcats . . . Niven and Hales were picked on a couple of All-State teams, as well as the All-Tournament five, and Heath joined these two stalwarts in gaining berths on several All-Conference selections . . . Niven set a new individual mark of 71 points at the state meet.

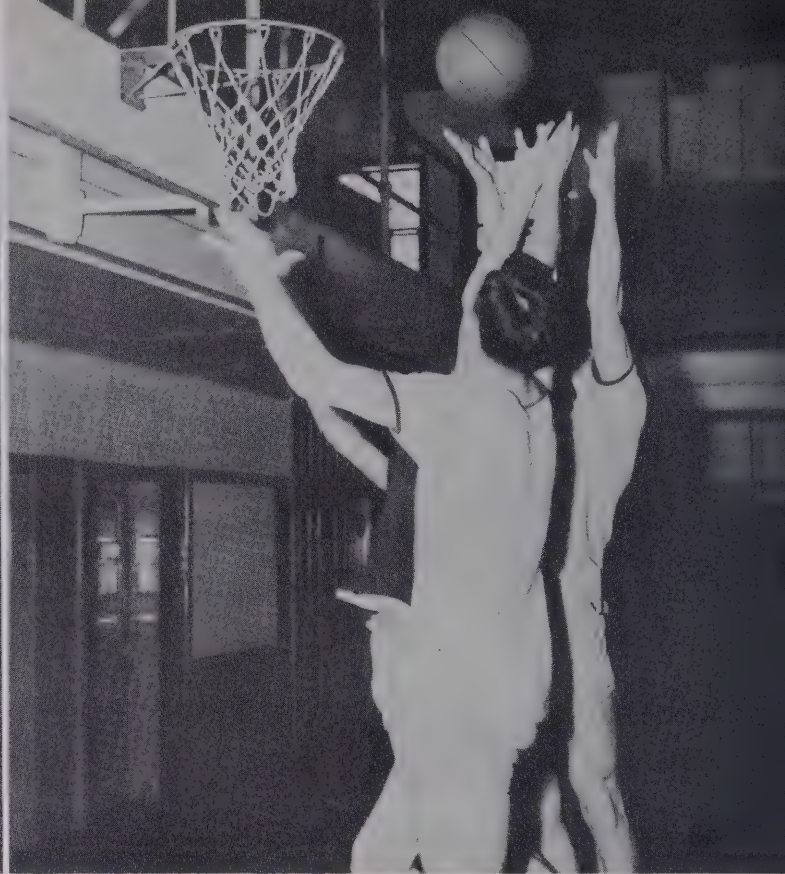

In closing, it is safe to say that the New Hanover Wildcat cagers of this season created quite a lasting impression in basketball circles around the old Tar Heel State . . . Good luck to the next season's aggregation!

Coaches Davis and Brogden of the Eastern conference champion team congratulate their co-captains, Cecil Heath and Marion Hales.

Burt Grant waits tensely as Ronnie Phelps and Florenz Worrell jump high and hard for the brown leather ball.

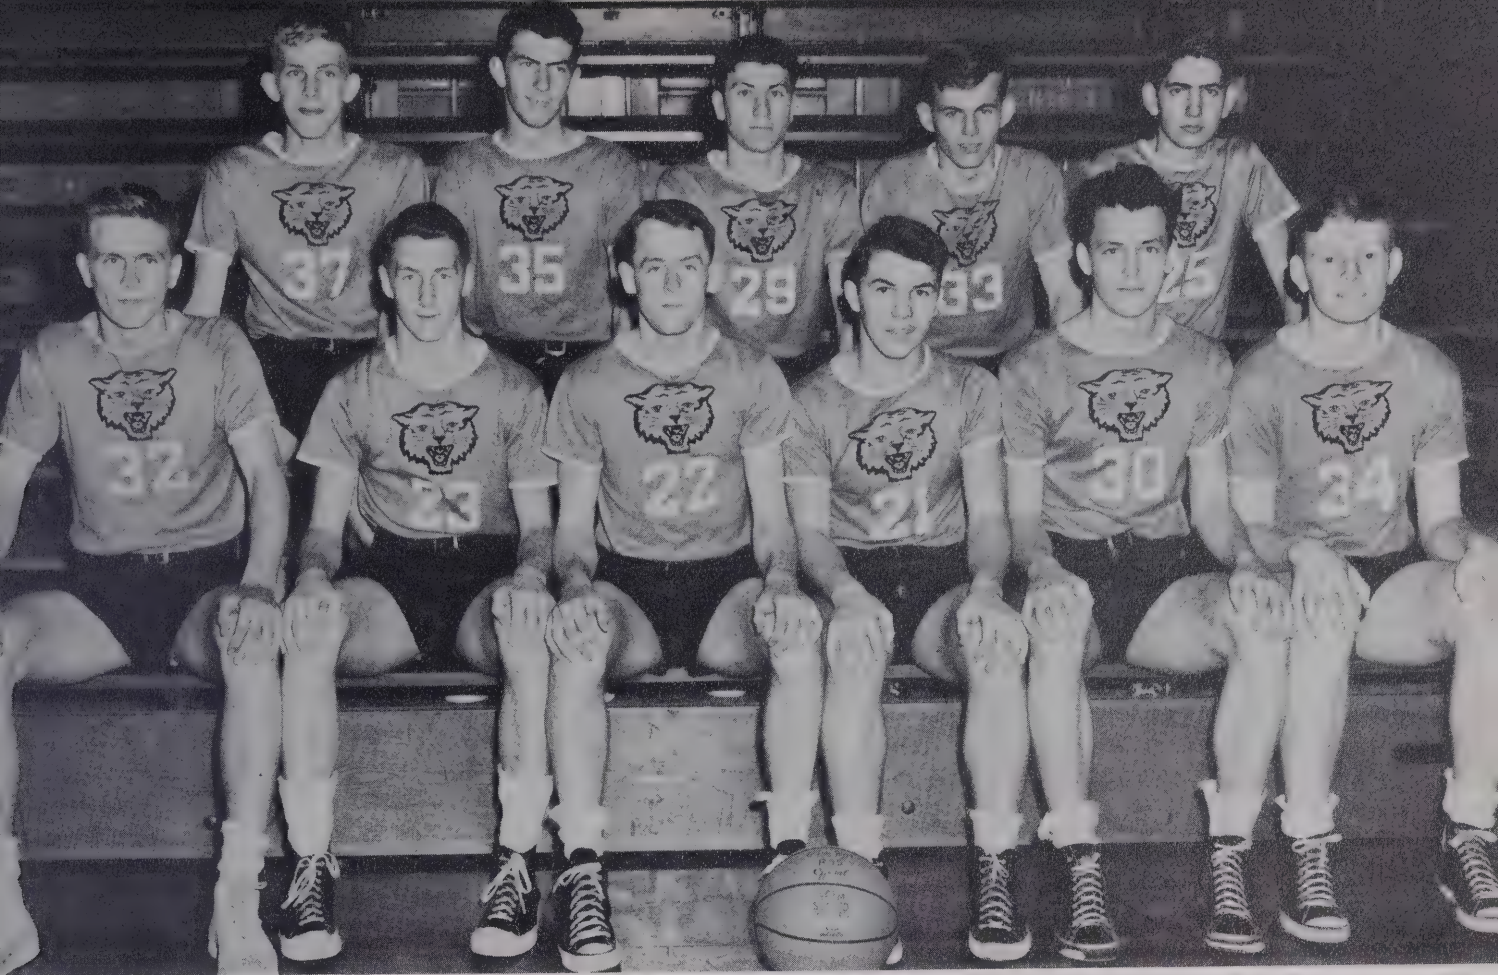

At practice each afternoon the eastern champion boys worked hard to develop the art of snatching the ball from the backboard.

The 1950-51 JV's battled to flaming glory with 17 wins and 3 losses. Camp Lejeune, last year's class AA champions, trounced our fighting JV's twice, once scoring the highest number of points (74-34) ever made against the "Wild Kittens." Raleigh took the other honor of defeating them.

Sonny Jurgenson, George Gaddy, and Donald Morton, coming cagers for the Varsity, helped Bill Speacht's boys rack up a team-scoring average of 52 points per game.

Coach Speacht had some hard moments in the return game with Raleigh. His boys were trailing up to the fourth quarter. At the start of the final period, the JV's were tied with their rival. They took the game 42-35 over Raleigh.

Excellent coaching, good teamwork, good sportsmanship, and spectacular playing made our Junior Varsity a team of which to be proud.

Skilled splashes, spirited swimmers

Winning second place in the Southern High School invitational meet held at the University of North Carolina, February 17, and fourth place in the Southeastern meet at Emory University, February 3, the swimming team improved steadily throughout the year. Members Smith Jewel, Allen Murray, Pete Dannenbaum, Joe Wilkins, Bobby Clark, and Sam McMillan received invitations to the National Interscholastic High School Championship swimming meet at Princeton, New Jersey, February 24.

The relay team, composed of Smith Jewel, Bobby Clark, and Sam McMillan, broke the Southeastern record of 1:28.9 with a new time of 1:27.1; with Joe Wilkins replacing Sam McMillan the team took the honors a second time at the Southern meet, beating the standing record of 1:28 with identical speed, 1:27.1.

The watchbird nearly fell in the pool with excitement as star swimmer Smitty Jewel broke a backstroke record of 1:07.2 with 1:05.4 at the Southeastern meet, and, beating an even tougher backstroke record at the Southern meet, Smitty swam to the finish in 1:05.8 minutes. The team was coached by Mr. Adam Smith of the Y. M. C. A.

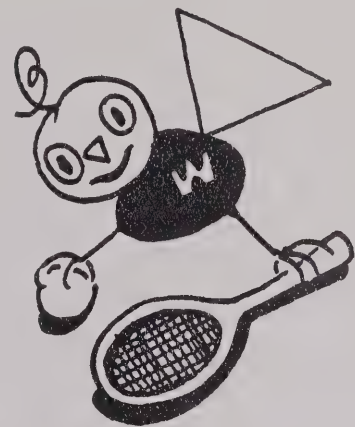

Racket wielders emerge—winners

The Wildcats had a tough schedule to meet this year. Coach Polilli's boys went up against some of North Carolina's top tennis clubs.

There was keen competition for the top six places on the team. Many times Jim Tabb, Jack King, Roddy Cameron, and John Hicks, last year's returning varsity, were challenged by newcomers Herman Postma, Pete Land, Irby Glover, Bonnie Snanns, Tommy Clemmons, Allan Quay, and Jimmy Fountain, who rose from the beginners' ranks to full-fledged positions on the team.

An honor battalion since its organization in 1937 and the only Junior R.O.T.C. battalion in the state, the New Hanover R.O.T.C. unit has won and maintained the respect and admiration of the school.

The cadets' classroom instruction was complete militarily, including Military History, Military Teaching Methods, Maps and Aerial Photographs, First Aid, Combat Formations, and the construction of different individual weapons which are used in combat.

The cadets drilled during Monday classroom periods and on Friday an inspection of the companies was held. Honor cadet inspection was also held on Friday. Company rivalry and individual competition were stimulated by these inspections, and notices of the times cadets received honor cadet or distinguished honor cadet were filed for future use in the selection of officers.

The R.O.T.C. course extends over a three-year period, and the cadets receive a half-unit of credit for each year they take R.O.T.C.

The company sponsors were chosen from the Senior girls and participated at formation and during parades. The watchbird's military enthusiasm was tripled one week when the battalion voted him honor mascot and gave him a special medal to wear.

Front row: Richard Griffith, Franklin Warner, Scott Covington, John Fordham, Herbert Young, Charles Rooks. Row two: Tommy Preston,

Rifle masters were crack shots

With enthusiasm born of an unerring eye and a steady aim the rifle team competed in long-distance matches throughout the season with the teams of Ashland High, Ashland, Kentucky; Rodger High School, Newport, Rhode Island; Gloucester High School, Gloucester, Massachusetts; Bangor High, Bangor, Maine; Walla Walla High School, Walla Walla, Washington; Pennsylvania Military College, Chester, Pennsylvania; and Boise High School, Boise, Idaho, defeating six of them. Coached by Captain Wright of the ROTC, and with a high team average of 3369, the rifle team scored its highest against Johnson City High School, Johnson City, Texas, shooting 3488 against their 3522. Crack shots of the team included Earl Page, with the highest team average of 352, followed by closely by Franklin Warner, with an average of 349, and Hugh Griffin, who averaged 000. The highest individual score, 362, was made by Franklin Warner.

Ruefully un-bullet-proof, the watchbird observed gleefully from behind the range at the Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon practices . . . the daily rush for the short ranges . . . Ruark's silence-breaking first shot . . . the ensuing battle of bull's eye bullets . . . and the rifle cleaning session after practice. The five top scorers were awarded letters on honor day.

G. Harris, Bobby Leitch.

Military music masters

Distinguished performances on the football field, in the homecoming parade, Armistice Day parade, and Azalea Festival parade, as well as at numerous other ROTC activities, made the ROTC band, under the direction of Mr. Fred Bouknight, one of the best-known military marching groups in the state.

Hanoverian Assembly Program

As Cleopatra, Margaret Crowe, eyes King Nero, Jim Tabb, comehitherishly, and Julius Caesar surveys the scene benignly, the other staff-slaves furtively eat grapes and assume bored countenances in keeping with the theme of the assembly program written by Betty Lou Lamb and Margaret Crowe. King Nero's court was becoming unbearably lifeless, hence the introduction of the superlatives to brighten court life. Other program features included annual-selling song with jitterbugs Kenneth Murphy and Peggy Hill, violinist Kay Godwin.

Love & lots of love,

Letter 12/14/81

Dear Bird,

Well, we've finally graduated! Honestly, it's been a real lot of fun knowing you so well and sharing so many good times with you. I'll never forget all those shambles parties at your poor house when we were freshmen and sophomores. How about those bicycle expeditions? (Air - 15¢ per pound). No kidding, we've had. I've been fun taking French and struggling through geometry under J. P. And English was really a scream this year, with all those notes we passed!

Working on this annual was something to remember... you really made this book, too. Congratulations on the results; the book is wonderful. Hope you'll do as well on everything you do during and after college will result as perfectly as this. Best of luck always. I'll never forget you. You are really someone and a fine friend. Don't forget to write me next year; I should want to keep up our friendship.

Lots of love,
Cady.

Dear Bird (Lincoln).

Let's do something, like yesterday.

But it's been weeks & I'm not.

John Gilroy Jr.

We will, and you & I must have a good time at school next year.

Love, Linda Dickey

Dear Bird,
see, hasn't it been fun putting this book together. you sure are one swell gal to work with and I'll miss you loads next year. Best of luck always,
Mary Scott

Dear Bird,
I'll miss you
loads next year.
Best of luck
always,
Mary Scott

Dear Bird,

Will I take a page or is this book large enough? Isn't awful: (I mean it literally) I adore it. - and you? you, I agree we really had the fun; but it seems to have been worth every one of them. Next year you and Mary & I will have big times and also study hard every day of course. - I'm in my own words. But I look and happiness to a very "original" girl. Let's try another time in!

Love,

Sally Smith.

Dear Bud,

It really has been a pleasure working on "your" staff.

Stay sweet! It's been tough at times in 309 at 5th, but it was worth it. The annual's swell!

Good luck at B. M.
Love,

Edith Bonjes

Dear Bird, believe that we are out of ye ol' N.H.H.S.? H.
Boy! I was more fun! Remember all the notes we used to write in 2, 3? Broke Society and Honor staff! Ah! Honor hell. let me just tell you - you were great! The just couldn't have had an annual without you! Of course, we all had our little spats, but true love never runs smooth! No joke, though, it was loads of fun! Now you just keep everything under all sorts of control up there at Bryn Mawr and I'll see ya! Don't ever forget that you're really the "bestest".
Love,
Betty Lou
